

President's Report.

Pauline Woodbridge OAM.

Hello to our members who have recently renewed your membership and welcome to our new members. The four newsletter editions for each year are a great way to pass on U3A information. Our editor Anne Thomson does a good job of keeping the content relevant and interesting.

So, welcome all to 2026. The members of the committee hope you had a good Xmas and holiday season and have managed to stay well and active during the various weather challenges of living in the tropics.

After surviving Covid, the years of 2024 and 2025 bought some changes and challenges for our branch and this year brings a new issue with the news that the premises we lease has been sold and our current lease concludes mid this year.

In March we will hold our Annual General Meeting. The documents and an invitation will come to you by bulk email. We encourage members to attend this official requirement of our Incorporated Association and this year we need enthusiastic members to consider roles on the committee as we will have some current members vacating their current tenure.

I am looking forward to continuing my connections with my colleagues in the classes I attend throughout the year – and it is thanks to the Tutors, Committee and the Admin volunteers that our branch offers so much to us as members. The more volunteers we have the more opportunities for learning and socialising is possible, supporting a dynamic local branch of U3A. Wishing you all a satisfying and interesting year,

And on the 8th day, God created seniors. ....

Most seniors never get enough exercise. In Her wisdom, God decreed that seniors become forgetful so they would have to search for their eyeglasses, keys, and other things, thus doing more walking. And God looked down and saw that it was good. Then God saw there was another need.

In Her wisdom, She made seniors lose coordination so they would drop things, requiring them to bend, reach, and stretch more. And God looked down and saw that it was good.

Then God considered the function of bladders and decided seniors would have additional calls of nature, requiring more trips to the bathroom, thus providing more exercise. God looked down and saw that it was good.

So, if you find, as you age, you are getting up and down a lot more times, remember it's God's will. It is all in your best interest, even though you mutter under your breath.

Have you ever wondered why old texts sometimes use the letter 'I' where we would use a 'J'? It's because for most of history, the letter 'J' as we know it simply did not exist.

The story of this change goes back to the Middle Ages, when 'I' and 'J' were used as the same letter. The sound was the same, and the shape was nearly identical, causing some confusion in writing.

It wasn't until 1524 AD that an Italian Renaissance scholar named Gian Giorgio Trissino formally proposed making a distinction. He suggested using 'J' for the consonant sound, like in 'jam', and 'I' for the vowel sound, like in 'igloo'.

This idea didn't catch on overnight. In fact, the process of separating the two letters took centuries. It only became common practice in the English language in the 17th century.

This means that famous figures like William Shakespeare (1564-1616) lived and wrote during a time when the distinction was still new and not widely accepted. Early editions of his plays famously spelled Juliet's name as 'Iuliet'.

FOR OUR WRITERS

The Australian Pen Museum is Bruce Wicks' life work – part obsession, part tribute and entirely a labour of love. The museum overflows with not just pens but centuries of history:

Roman bronze styluses from 2000 years ago used to write into clay tablets. That's real permanence. A Victorian desk set, writing desks, hand-cut nibs and even a 400-year-old parchment document.

There's the 1905 handcrafted dip pen crafted from Tasmanian tiger myrtle, which was fashioned by a bushman for an American couple who'd come to Tasmania to photograph insects. Embedded in its shaft is a tiny lead map of Tasmania. Each artifact is authenticated either through museum contacts or historical publications. Ancient items are bought only from museums with duplicates, while more modern pieces are assessed using Bruce's growing expertise – honed over 66 years of collecting.

Bruce lives on-site and opens the doors seven days a week, from 8 am to 8 pm – and later in the warmer months. He hasn't just collected pens. He's built a reputation.

To call it a pen museum is, in some ways, misleading. Wicks' collection charts not just writing tools but the evolution of how we express, document and define ourselves.

From school desks to government seals, from copperplate calligraphy to wartime correspondence, and from ornate inkwells to ink-stained blotters and hand-drawn maps, every shelf and drawer carries a trace of someone's thoughts once laid down in ink.

"They don't realise how central writing instruments have been to daily life. Until they see it."

His dedication has turned Gundagai into an unlikely pilgrimage site for handwriting enthusiasts, antique lovers, historians and curious travellers – some of whom simply stumble in while stretching their legs after detouring off the nearby Hume Highway.

After many years existence, The U3A Writers' Group continues to prosper with its friendly meetings offering opportunities for members to present, in an interested and non-assessed environment, a short piece of writing addressing a chosen topic in either prose or poetry. The period of individual presentations is always followed by an informal morning tea which ensures enjoyable social interaction within the group while additional aspects, such as the often hilarious challenge of a "Five Minute Write", the welcoming of new ideas and the production of an anthology of our work by one of our own members, keep the meetings varied and interesting.

Members Ruth Hughes and Margaret Pepper have accepted leadership roles within the Group in 2026 as Judy Knox and Anne Atkinson step down, after several years, for personal reasons. The members are confident that Ruth and Margaret will do a great job and all are looking forward to the group's activities in the year

CHRISTMAS FUNCTIONS

mahj ong

Mahjong elected to celebrate the end of year function at the beautiful venue where they play twice a week at Thuringowa library over looking the pool and the ovals. The tables were laden with food, some contributed by the players for delicious desserts. The "lady in red" organised games between the two courses with an abundance of prizes to choose from. Thank you to all for your contributions.

CRAFT

Hello everyone. Happy New Year!

We held our Christmas break-up at a private property last year. Beautiful waterfront venue, company and food. Many thanks to Lise and her husband, who originally designed their home.

We're looking forward to the resumption of activities on January 12,

GAMES MORNING AT RIVERWAY

A small contingent of the Mahjong group started their brains working at the Games Day on 5 January. There were 14 keen amateurs taking to the tables for a range of challenges with Canasta, Five Crowns, Uno, and a host of other games to choose from. In most cases players were stretching their brains to understand new games and then playing the various games with at least one player being competent helping the others. In Canasta, a couple of open hands got us working. Five Crowns started with jokes with 3 cards developing to a serious concentration when having 13 cards. The Uno players enjoyed their games and the group with Ruymmikins were clearly engaged with their game.

Those who didn't attend missed an excellent regrouping and brain challenging start to 2026 with the brains sharpened to tackle Mahjong on Friday 9 January, 2026.

Why I Joined U3A.

Noreen Letizia

When I retired from working in a primary school in various roles such as classroom teacher, Learning Support Teacher, Mobility Support Teacher & Deputy Principal in 2023, I wanted to contribute to the community by volunteering. The Office Manager & other office volunteers trained me in the requirements of volunteering at University of the Third Age. They are all extremely friendly and welcoming. Classes in which I have participated are Guitar, Book Club, Italian for Fun and Travel, & Yoga. I enjoy working in the office each Friday morning with Monika. It is always fun and delightful meeting class tutors and class participants.

Kathy Joyce

"I initially joined U3A perhaps some 20 years ago, with an interest in some of the classes available at the time. I then prepared the U3A Newsletter for a year or two after which I pursued other outside interests. In recent years, I've been attracted back to this great organisation and now volunteer in the office for three hours each fortnight. I've met some wonderful interesting people thru U3A and have also enjoyed the variety of Friday talks. I encourage you to check out the list of classes available - something for everyone."
